LABOR RELATIONS

Handling investigations and security union activities is always challenging and requires a firm with specific experience in handling N.L.R.B. issues. Diplomatic Tactical Services Inc. has experience handling all types of investigative activity during strikes, organizational attempts, secondary pickets, negotiations and de-certification drives.

Diplomatic Tactical Services Inc. employs fully licensed private investigators and security experts. Additionally, specific training on handling N.L.R.B. issues is provided to each investigator/security specialist prior to assignment. This training can be customized to client requirements as needed.

Diplomatic Security officers are personally supervised by managers who have firsthand experience dealing with N.L.R.B. issues. Individual reports with documentation will be provided to the client's designated representatives.

Diplomatic Tactical Services Inc. Labor relations include:

- Covert Surveillance: Surveillance of areas identified as probable locations of illegal activity is a necessary part of dealing with a work stoppage. Knowing what to document and what to avoid is the key to not crossing into an illegal surveillance of union activity.
- Undercover Operations: Placing of an operative in the ranks is dangerous if not handled with the greatest care. We have properly trained operatives that can document illegal activity without creating liability.
- Executive Protection: It is a sad truth that management frequently feels the need for this service during labor disputes. Only with true professionals can this be handled without complicating negotiations.
- Overt Security/Surveillance: Frequently, a little prevention can avoid problems later with the board. Our operatives have the training to prevent conflict and avoid activity that may damage the client's image as well as legal position.
