Kevin,

Thanks. I was and am concerned about what kind of publicity this will bring. Glad to hear that the Dillo Dirt area was in pretty good shape.

Your faithful public servants Jody and Kevin attend the mudfest. We monitored all the mud and found no signs of Dillo Dirt emerging from the mud. [pictures attached] Only the upper field was treated with Dillo Dirt and that field did better than the lower field. The turf held together well but the lower fields could not drain through the clay subsoil. It was a silty mud that ooooooozed up through the turf. The aroma was not Dillo Dirt, but the anaerobic muck of swamps.

I plan to go over this afternoon to take more pictures.

I fielded calls all weekend on this issue. I suspect you are correct. They will want specific details today as the media work on the "ACL wrap up" stories.

Thanks, Kevin

I'm guessing we should be ready for media attention.
